Taylor Bill to Renew Contracts Draws Opposition

NO ACTION TAKEN ON BILL

After Two Hours, Hearing On Measure is Indefinitely Adjourned—State Press In Protest.

Richmond.—

House bill 45, of which Delegate Taylor is patron, was the subject of a warm meeting. That is the bill which has passed the House and was sent over to the Senate, where it was intercepted by Senator Mills and recommittee, the hearing being a joint affair between the House Prisons and Senate Finance Committees.

The bill is that which places power in the State Prison Board, as the penitentiary board is now known, to renew the contracts at the prison and to work the inmates at the State Farm, the limegrinding plants and the stone quarries. The bill also allows the board, with the superintendent, to renew contracts as could be used in the State departments and offices.

During the course of the hearing James C. Latimer, secretary of the Virginia Press Association, read from the proceedings of that body in the last meeting in which was a letter from the Governor, who had sent a request to certain State officers, including county clerks, asking the association did not like that action, and the owners of the papers in the small towns and the county sections repudiated the suggestion. To take the little printing that now goes to them would be a serious impairment of the income of many, they held.

Printers of this city, who employ the best grade of skilled men, were on hand in large numbers, and they made a solemn protest against the practice of having printing done in this plant in competition with the men who are employed, who have families, who pay taxes to support the government, taking the position that it was unfair to such free labor and an injury to the established business of the city and State.

Colonel Hodges, president of the board, said that it is a problem to know what to do with the convicts. It was easy to see that there were those in the prison who could not be sent to the roads nor to the stone quarries, and they would have to be kept employed. He hoped that the time would come when they could be wholly employed in making such things as could be used by governmental agencies.

"There are many of the prisoners who are suffering from disease that are believed to be more or less communicable, and these are unfitted for many classes of labor, lest innocent persons become contaminated, he said.

The committee, after more than two hours, rose without action. It is not known when another meeting will be held.

The House Committee on Roads and Internal Navigation reported favorably the resolutions requesting the State Corporation Commission to remove the 50 per cent surcharge on Pullman tickets to points within the State of Virginia. The measure was introduced in the Senate by Senator Smith, of Norfolk, and passed without great opposition.

Senator Smith and Delegate Davis, both of Norfolk county, appeared before the committee in behalf of the resolution, while counsel for the railroads fought approval of the measure.

"The people of Virginia and the nation are tired of surcharges and the many taxes they are compelled to pay," Senator Smith declared. "So great has been the agitation against the several surcharges of the railroads that the Interstate Commerce Commission now has a subcommittee sitting to determine whether these surcharges should be reduced or removed.

"You are told by attorneys of the railroad that if you pass this resolution, the State Corporation Commission can do nothing. I am here to tell you that the surcharge did not become effective in Virginia until ordered by the Corporation-Commission. And if we are seeking removal of this unfair charge then the place for us to send our resolution is to the Corporation Commission, regardless of whether the order came from Washington originally."

Senator Parsons, of Grayson, presented in the Senate a duplicate of the House bill, recently defeated, which seeks to vest women by express statute with all the rights and privileges exercised by men.

The bill did not meet with favor in the House, but Senator Parsons was accommodating and agreed to present the measure and do all possible to have it enacted.

Two bills were voted out of the Committee of Agriculture, Mining and Manufacturing. Senate bill 183, establishing a uniform decimal measure for corn meal sold in containers was one of these. Several representatives of the milling industry from various parts of the State appeared in behalf of the measure. Senate bill 249, was indefinitely postponed by consent and bill 224, substituted in its place, was voted out of the committee.

This latter bill provides for and establishes a system of inspecting fruits and vegetables through the division of markets of the Virginia Department of Agriculture. It provides that the inspection shall be made upon request and that the cost of the inspection shall be met by fees charged those requesting the inspection, these fees to be paid into the treasury.

This bill further provides that upon inspection the inspector shall issue a certificate, and that this certificate shall be accepted as prima facie evidence of the quality, condition and grade of the product in any court in the Commonwealth.

The Committees on Moral, Social and Child Welfare of the Senate and House held a joint session and took up the consideration of the Layman bill, which amends the prohibition law. The hearing was protracted, with the supporters of prohibition on hand in large numbers. The bill was amended in many particulars, but all were with a view to making the law clearer and stronger.

There was one change that appealed to the majority—that whereby when a person is caught at a still he is deemed guilty of violation of the prohibition law. The change was made so that it may be considered a prima facie evidence of guilt, and will require explaining to prevent convictions.

There were some forty other amendments, but these are said to be more explanatory and clarifying than changing or weakening the law, which still has many more teeth than in the past. The sections imposing jail terms on offenders—and jail terms are to mean work on the roads—were retained in the bill, and that section which takes from judges the right to suspend sentences in prison was retained in the bill, and future convictions under the amended law means more forces for the roads.

The bill is to be reprinted. The Senate Committee, following the solving of the joint session, made a favorable report on the original bill and it will be reprinted. Only one vote was cast against the bill in committee.

The State Highway Commission met with a reverse and its chairman, Henry G. Shirley, received a rebuff when the House of Delegates refused to hear him for five minutes on the bill stripping the commission of jurisdiction over road money returned to the counties and then voted to discharge the Roads Committee from further consideration of the bill.

The bill was killed in committee last week, the vote on the motion to indefinitely postpone being two to one. Soon after the House convened Delegate Kessell, of Rockingham, moved that the committee be discharged. Delegate Bear, of Roanoke, vigorously opposed this motion, saying that the bill practically kills the Highway Commission. He moved that the chair be vacated for five minutes to bear Chairman Shirley.

Delegate Kessell objected, saying that it was without precedent to permit an outsider to speak during the deliberations of the House. Delegate Houston, of Hampton, former Speaker, supported the Bear motion, citing several instances in refutation of the charge that the procedure was without precedent.

The motion to vacate the chair and hear Mr. Shirley was lost, 43 to 42. The motion to dismiss the committee and bring the bill back to the House carried, 52 to 20. The result was an important victory for the "home rule" faction in building roads as opposed to the group which would give the Highway Commission supervision over the spending of money given to the counties.

The pilotage bills came to the fore in the Senate, holding the attention of the members for an hour and a half. The Senate for a few minutes wrestled with the matter of procedure and a parliamentary situation, which was cleared away, Senator Barron offering his bill as a substitute for the Lesner bill.

The fact soon appeared that the matter of rates as they existed had been agreed, and as discussion progressed it became clear that the only real difference as to what board or commission shall have charge of the fixing of rates—the State Corporation Commission or the commission provided for in the bill proposed by Senator Barron.

The other point of difference was that which sought to require yearly from each individual pilot and from any company or association of Virginia pilots, sworn statements of their receipts and earnings from the business of pilotage for the preceding year, and of the disposition and expenditure of the same, which said statement shall be particularly itemized and the details as to the receipts and expenditures, and for what purposes said expenditures were made, shall be specifically set forth therein.

HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK

Covington.— William Craft, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Craft, was seriously and probably fatally wounded when a 22-calibre rifle, which he was examining while visiting a playmate, who lived near-by, was accidentally discharged, the bullet entering his forehead.

Lynchburg.— The co-ede of Lynchburg College are at work in preparation for a gymnasium exhibition to be staged about April 1, the program being done under the direction of Miss Irene K. Eberly, physical director. This will be the first exhibition of this character at Lynchburg, a child never before had the use of a gymnasium.

Richmond.—State Prohibition Director H. B. Smith has written a letter to Chief of Police C. A. Sherry commending the local police on the manner in which prohibition was enforced here during 1923. The record shows that 2,380 arrests for drunkenness were made, against 2,752 during 1922, and that 1,005 were made for prohibition violations, as compared with 738 of the previous year.

Lynchburg. — Lynchburg College and the remaining the colleges and universities of the country in per centage ratings under the auspices of the Federation of European students through the student friendship fund of the World Student Christian Federation. Last year the local college ranked first among the colleges of the country, the per capita was $3.16, with Smith University with a per capita of $3 being reported second in the list.

Fork Union.—Dry officers captured an eighty-gallon capacity still near here with six barrels of mash and a gun, located in a tobacco barn. The barrels of mash were underground, while the large copper still was hidden up in the tobacco. A single-barrel gun was up over the door. Whitlow, tenant on the farm, was hailed over to the February term of court in the sum of $300. The case had a preliminary hearing before Justice Bell.

Charlottesville. — Jack Davis, a lumberman of Rosehill, and his son, Solomon, 24, are being held by the police here pending the outcome of injuries to Detective Maurice F. J. Greaver, who was probably mortally hurt while raiding the Davis home for liquor. Policeman Dowell was seriously injured. The two officers were struck on the head with fire irons as they searched a wardrobe. Two half-gallon cans of liquor were seized in the raid.

Richmond. — The State Highway Commission is authorized to add only 100 miles a year to the State highway system, under the 2 1-2 per cent clause, and already petitions have been received for 196 miles for the year 1924, Henry G. Shirley, chairman of the commission, stated. Next week delegations from every section of the State are expected to come before the commission to present their claims for allocations. Only one mile a year can be allowed in each county under this allotment since there are 100 counties in the State, he pointed out. Last year there was one county allotted sixteen miles. Previous to last year this county did not have a mile of State highway, but some other counties are claiming that the formula last county last year should not have any allotments for another sixteen years.

Fredericksburg. — Unknown persons broke into the county jail at King George and robbed it of its contents of wet liquor, consisting of eight and one-half gallons of corn whiskey and eleven gallons of wine. The liquor had been captured by county prohibition officers in raids on stills, and had been used as evidence. A fine assortment of copper stills, worms and other accessories for the manufacture of moonshine was left untouched, only the finished product being taken by the invaders. Entrance was gained by breaking a hole in the brick wall and then smashing the lock on the heavy door. The jail was not occupied at the time, the last prisoner having been released during the day, Thursday. This is the third time in recent months that the King George jail has been forcibly entered, once to effect the escape of a prisoner and twice to gain possession of the intoxicants.

Lynchburg. — State prohibition agents during the past week raided and captured six complete outfits, the latest being the arrests of James Tomlin and O. C. Smith, the former being arrested near the Forks of Buffalo and the latter near the Piedmont soapstone quarries. Tomlin's arrest yielded a fifty-gallon still and Smith's a 100-gallon outfit. During the week the raids netted six men, a horse and an automobile and a large quantity of mash ready for use.

The painter has been "made the goat" long enough

It is about time that property owners realized that the painter isn't to blame when a cheap painting job does not last. It isn't from choice that the painter uses cheap paint or varnish. But he has to use them if the owner insists on looking for price instead of quality.

Let the painter figure on good paint and varnish. It may cost a little more by the gallon but very little more by the job. Labor is the big item and that's the same with a cheap paint as with good paint.

Good, honest paint and varnish like BREINIG BROTHERS' is an economy—whether they are for a porch chair or for your entire house. They are made to give lasting protection.

Dull, Sluggish Feeling

"BLACK-DRAUGHT is our household stand-by," says Mrs. Thomas H. Koll, who lives near Ellijay, Ga. "We have been using it years and years. My mother's family used it and we do here and my four sisters do, too.

"I could not run my house without Black-Draught. I give it to the children whenever they need a purgative, and both Mr. Koll and myself take it. As a medicine for sluggish liver and headache, and the ills that come with constipation, Black-Draught is fine.

"Lots of times I have felt dull and sluggish, my head would ache and I had to make a great effort to do my work. A little dose of Black-Draught would correct this feeling. We always keep it on the medicine shelf."

When Lotteries Were Lawful.

In the Eighteenth century lotteries were extremely popular in America. Legislatures authorized them for every species of public improvement, for the building of churches and colleges, for the repair of losses to individuals by fire and otherwise, for example, Faneuil hall, after the fire of 1761, was rebuilt by lottery. The Continental congress tried to raise money by lottery in 1777.
